

STUDIES OF REGIONAL POLICY IN THE MODERN WORLD

Allayorova Leylo Baxodir qizi

Place of work – IP LLC "Landtech"

l.allayorova@gmail.com

Based on the review of the acting Associate professor of UMED PhD A.A. Sharapov

ABSTRACT

This article analyzes the theoretical foundations of one of the main topics of international relations as regionalization. As you know, world development is characterized by globalization processes, where regionalization plays an important role. In political approaches, there are a number of scientific and theoretical approaches on the topic of this scientific article. In theoretical approaches, such categories as region, regionalism, regionalization, etc. are singled out separately. In the study of political processes in Central Asia, the above approaches play an important role, since at present there is a process of regionalization in the region, where there are interests of such large international actors as the USA, China, Russia, etc.

Keywords: Region, regionalization, regionalism, Central Asia.