ABSTRACT

This article emphasizes the necessity of expressing the conditions for enhancing students' legal consciousness and legal culture within the framework of social partnership agreements. It suggests including provisions related to social partnership at the legislative level, such as the content of agreements and conditions related to social partnerships. In this regard, it is proposed to include rules that support the improvement of legal consciousness and legal culture. These rules may involve presenting legal norms as mandatory conditions for the parties involved in the partnership, conducting surveys aimed at assessing legal knowledge, and organizing events. These steps would align with the goal of improving legal awareness and legal culture among students.
